

Hi Dropbox,

We (MacRumors) have noticed that you are dropping support for older operating systems (OS X Tiger 10.4 or OS X Leopard 10.5) in regards to the Dropbox desktop application (client). We're writing to you to let you know we will be moving our business elsewhere, as you no longer support us.

Don't worry, –our files and photos won't leave the cloud. But since we run the last supported operating system on our machine, we won't be able to access them using Dropbox's desktop application. Apple never made another upgrade for PowerPC users, press release here.

If you don't want to continue to support a good chunk of users, our files won't be on Dropbox's website anymore. However, on May 18th, if you choose to continue to support us, we shall remain signed into our account on our machines and the application will remain to be accessible.

We apologize for being such a burden, we should know not to use machines that are still perfectly suitable for our uses.

Sincerely,

Keaton
