

What is this game?

I am unaware if it was ever available on OS X, but certainly was available around OS 7.6 - 9 period! I used to play it on a Powerbook 540c.

How did it work?

This was the cursor via which you would draw the boxes via the cursor keys.

These boxes were a product of you managing to draw from one side to any other side without either being hit by one of the moving colour things or one of the stars that walked the edges. The aim of the game was to make as much of the square covered in boxes like this (I believe it was scored in percentages).

These little stars walked along the lines, they started together at either the bottom or top of the screen and worked their way around. They could be destroyed (and "smash") if you managed to draw a box around one of them but if they met your rectangle drawing line they would "fizz" up it and destroy your cursor, resulting in you losing a life (or maybe you had to start again).
